

AIA New York

Editorial Calendar – Oculus 2017

The Oculus 2017 Editorial Calendar has been set. If you are an architect in practice or by training, or see yourself as an astute observer of New York’s architectural and planning scene, Oculus wants to hear from you. You may submit projects/topics from anywhere, but architects must be New York-based. Please submit story ideas/projects by the deadlines indicated below to Alan Brake, guest editor: abrake@aiany.org.

Spring: Architectural Education Today

This issue examines approaches to architectural education, including expedited paths to licensure, increasing preparedness for practice, and the integration of fabrication and prototyping in design studios. The issue also includes new architecture school buildings, excerpts from the 12th annual Dean’s Roundtable and more.

Deadline for story ideas: Closed

Summer: Special Issue: 2017 AIANY Design Awards

This special issue is entirely dedicated the winners and merit recipients of the annual AIANY Design Awards.

Deadline for story ideas: NA

Fall: Resilience: Five Years After Sandy

How have architects, landscape architects, government agencies, and civic organizations responded to climate change, rising sea levels, and increased storm activity in the aftermath of Hurricane Sandy? Will we be better prepared for future catastrophic events?

Deadline for story ideas: 05.15.17

Winter: Architecture in the Public Eye

How does the public perceive the profession? How can architects help educate non-architects about the built environment and value of design? Should architects reach new audiences through social media and other platforms?

Deadline for story ideas: 08.14.17